

APSPIS 2015 is the 2nd Asia Pacific Symposium on Process Intensification and Sustainability. The focus of the Symposium is to gather researchers, industrialists and professionals from around the world who share the common research interests in process intensification and sustainability to exchange research ideas and encourage any possible collaboration opportunities.

The Symposium will be held at the Sheraton on the Park, which is located at the centre of the city of Sydney. Sydney is the most populous city in Australia, and it is well known for being the most multicultural city in Australia. Sydney is ranked in the top fifteen cities in the world for tourism every year since 2000.
